It's Suite No. 1 that is the most popular. In eleven sections, it begins with a beautiful French-style Overture, continues through a jaunty 'Bourée', a stately 'Minuet' and ends with the grand 'Alla Hornpipe'. It's often paired with Handel's other celebratory royal river piece, Music for the Royal Fireworks, written in 1749 for George II. He was obviously well practised at writing music that would carry when performed outside, using bassoons, horns and trumpets to help the sound carry.

It used to be thought that the present Suite with horns, in F major (a.k.a. Suite No. 1), accompanied the trip up river to Chelsea, the Suite in G major (No. 3) was heard during the meal, and that the Suite in D major (No. 2) was played during the return to London, but most scholars now agree with Bonet's assertion that the music was heard three times in its entirety.
